Danielson, June 13.—Unconscious, and at the point of death, William B. oberts of Columbia was found in his sil at the Brooklyn fall at 5 o'clock anday morning with one end of a ord looped around his neck and the ther tied to the cell door. His atimpt at suicide was discovered just a time to save his life. A slash with knife in the hands of a hall man severed the strangling cord and Roberts fell to floor.

Two hours were required to revive the man, but with the aid of a physician he was brought back to consciousness, raving, struggling and so hysterical that it was necessary to strap him to a bed in the jail hospital to restrain him.

During the day he became more guiet and his condition Sunday afternoon was such as to indicate his recovery. (Special to The Bulletin.)

tremens. Suspicion hovers about Roberts' connection with the death of his wife, who was found by the roadside near their home in Columbia last Monday evening. In view of this fact, Sheriff Sibley immediately telephoned to Coroner R. H. Fiske' of Stafford, who investigated the death of Mrs. Roberts and informed him of the happening at the jail. Coroner Fiske had started for Tarrytown, where Roberts went to the funeral of his wife, with the intention of having the body exhumed and an autopsy performed. Upon the result of this investigation will depend Roberts' future. His attempt at suicide has strengthened the suspicion agatinst him.

San Jose Council, K. of C., Holds Annual Memorial Services-Address by Mayor D. P. Dunn.

San Jose council, No. 14 Knights of Columbus, observed its annual Me-morial day Sunday afternoon. Mem-bers of the council assembled at their hall at 1.30 o'clock and were escorted by Wheeler's American band to St. Joseph's church, where vesper services were sung at 2 o'clock. During the services special music was rendered by the choir. After the church services the graves of the priests buried in the the graves of the priests ouried in the rectory grounds were decorated and then the procession was formed. C. Wheeler, leader; Marshal Walter E. Costello; officers of the councell according to rank; members of San Jose council, No. 14, K. of C., in column of twos, the clergy, Mayor Daniel P. Dunn, Grand Knight Max-well and representatives of the press in carriages.

The line of march was down son street to Main to St. Joseph's son street to Main to St. Joseph's cemetery, where prayer was offered by Rev. John J. Flemming, rector of St. Joseph's church. The graves of departed members were then decorated.

Mayor Dunn's Tribute to the Dead. The address was given by Mayor Daniel P. Dunn, who said in part: order to revive the memories of the past and recall the fraternal compast and recall the fraternal com-radeship once borne by us and the Knights who lie here at rest under the grassy coverlet of the Creator. The purpose of our Memorial day is to demonstrate that man is more than an incident of creation, more than a passing representative of animal life that is born, dies and is no more. That there is within him an invisible That there is within him an invisible sun that never dies, and whose pure rays shine out upon the path of im-mortality and intimates eternity to men. It is a time, therefore, for profound meditation upon the true pur-pose of life, and a contemplation of its possibilities. Our departed Knights neither sought nor attained fame. The world at large knew naught of their existence. The community in which they dwelt and performed an honorable part has forgotten many if not all of them. Their memory remains green in the minds only of those who loved them, and their fellow knights who honored them. Their knighthood was bestowed upon them for no feat of arms or deed of conquest, but for the more chivalrous act of carrying the burden of the average man without number or plaint and with steadfast murmur or plaint and with steadfast courage, patience and fortitude. Thus they lived—thus they died. Can it be possible that this is the end?

Death Is Not All. We of the glorious faith say no. We Knights of Columbus proclaim that the sepulches that surround us may contain all that remains of the physi-cal bodies of our former associates, but that invisible sun, to which I have referred, still lives, and the immortal souls of our departed knights may be soils of our departed knights may be today in spiritual presence participating in these exercises, and in the pleasurable enjoyment of the fact that they are not forgoiten and that their J. And it is no little consolation to know that the five former members of our council whose bodies lie in other sacred grounds will receive loving tribute at the hands of brother knights on this Memorial day of our order.

Having considered that motto of our order, "Tempus fugit, mement of our order, noble principle of our order, rightly designated as the greatest of the three

gregational and Methodist Churches-Foresters' Memorial Service on Sunday morning, at the Congregational church, a Children's day concert was given by the Sunday school. The decorations were under the direction of Miss May Gane, and were as beautiful as ever seen in the church. The background was a curtain of evergreen and laurel blossoms, with large vases of isurel at either side. Over the organ mirror were isurel blossoms, and the center piece was a cross, with gladioli, carnations, syringas, ferns and laurel arranged at the base and on both sides. Over two hundred and fifty carnations, given by Mrs. A. A. Young, were massed at either side of the platform, and with the kindergarten class scated in their little chairs upon the platform, it was a charming picture.

The programme was well executed by the children, the music by the school being led by a choir of young people under the direction of E. F. Burleson, with F. S. Leonard organist. The programme was announced by Supt. F. E. Robinson, and opened with a song by the school, Hosanna to the Children's King. After the invocation by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Gane, there was another school song. Specially Children's Day was recited by Bessie Beardwood, Stanley Wheelock and Everett Hooper. The kindergarten class sang a motion song, and anna Littlefield recited If I Was a Robin, followed by William Marshall, who recited The Thank You Song. After another school song, the kindergarten class gave an exercise entitled Roses, Marion Robinson and Dorothy Paul sang Buch a One As I, and there was a recitation by Henry Bettomley.

A school song was followed by the resentation of Fibbs. to Allos Shaw.

A school song was followed by the presentation of Bibles to Alice Shaw. Ruth Stewart and Isabel Marshall Gerald Wolfe also received one, but was unable to be present. Mrs. F. E. Robinson's class sang Like the Flowers. Seven boys from Miss M. B. Soule's class, Harold Spicer, Earl Hiscox, A. A. Young, Jr., Austin Harris, E. H. Hiscox, Jr., Andrew McNicol and Henry Bottomley gave a soldier song with flags and swords, and sang Count Us In, after which A. A. Young, Jr., Austin Harris, and Andrew McNicol recited Beneath the Flag. Four little girls from the kindergarten class. Alice Shaw, Anna Littlefield, Bessie Thompson and Alice Moore, sany Lit-Thompson and Alice Moore, sany Lit-tle Sunbeams Do Not Stay. Another school song was followed by the pres-entation of diplomas to seven children who leave the kindergarten depart-

Dr. Gane gave a short talk to parents and children, after which the collection was received. This was a pretty part of the programme for the offering was taken by six little girls, who, with their pink-trimmed baskets, first came forward and offered their plea. It was then received by Clara 9dams, Carol Bliss, Elizabeth Shaw, Ruth Stewart, Marian Robinson and Dorothy Paul. After the closing sons

Ruth Stewart, Marian Robinson and Dorothy Paul. After the closing song and benediction, these little girls stood at the doors and presented a carnation to each person present as he passed out.

The concert was in charge of Mrs. E. H. Hiscox and Mrs. H. E. Paul, assisted by Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. G. W. Robinson, Miss Marguerite Blies and Miss M. E. Soule.

At the Methodist Church. The Children's day concert at the Methodist church was held Sunday evening. The center of the platform was occupied by an arch of laurel and daisles surrounted by a large sun. The words, Sun of Righteousness, were outlined upon the arch with daisles. The chancel-rail was entwined with a daisy chain, and upon the platform and organ were bouquets of lanform and organ were bouquets of lau-rel blossoms, daisles, ferns and rho-dodendrons. The effect was exceed-dodendrons. The effect was exceedingly pretty.

The following programme was given, having been arranged by Miss Alice Richmond, Mrs. M. H. Bartlett and Miss Alice Young. The decorating committee was Mrs. Bartlett and her Sunday school class, assisted by Mr. Bartlett and William Hunter. Miss Annie Robertson had charge of the music:
